The magic of crystals

Kiki Davdra first fell in love with crystals after seeing them at a young age, at the Natural History Museum in London. She has been buying them, collecting them, and learning more about them since then, and brought her knowledge and her collection with her when she moved to the Algarve. Her company, Stilla, gathers ethically-sourced crystals from around the world, and her passion for photography and thirst for knowledge has made her an expert of the unique energy of each crystal. You can visit her website at stillacrystals.com - there are many beautiful pieces for sale.
